THE BIOGRAPHY

From a Dh 1,500 salary to the UAE's signage standard

Early life & heritage

Born December 1958 in Karachi, Pakistan, Shabbir Merchant grew up in a family already anchored in the signage trade. His late father, M Y "Yousuf" Merchant, migrated from Bombay to Karachi in 1947 and became a pioneer of outdoor advertising and neon signs in Pakistan — first through a Lahore partnership, then building a wider reputation in hand-blown glass neon.

That inheritance of craft, discipline and a love of light-up letters would later shape the Champion story in Dubai.

Arrival in the UAE

In 1976, at just 18, Shabbir Merchant arrived in the UAE at the invitation of his elder brother Hanif Merchant — founder of what is today Emirates Neon Group. His first role was alongside Hanif, learning the fundamentals of the UAE signage market: how to price, source, install, and keep a customer for life.

His starting salary was Dh 1,500 a month. The habit he built around that paycheck — saving, re-investing, refusing shortcuts — became the financial backbone of the company he would one day start on his own.

> "Customers are the backbone of any business. You can build with better machines, faster software or cheaper material — but nothing replaces a client who trusts you enough to call you back."

Founding Champion Neon · 1989

In 1989 Shabbir Merchant opened an 800-square-foot office in Deira and founded Champion Neon as a sole manufacturer of hand-blown glass neon signs — continuing the family's glass-neon craft on a new continent. Over four decades the workshop grew into the Champion Group — an integrated signage, digital and outdoor-media manufacturer with branches across Sharjah, Ajman, Abu Dhabi, Fujairah and Ras Al Khaimah, anchored by a 65,000-square-foot production campus in Dubai Investments Park 2.
